7/12/2007

DETROIT – The run of the display celebrating Detroit Tiger Justin Verlander’s historic no-hitter June 12th at Comerica Park has been extended at the Detroit Historical Museum.

From now through Sunday, August 12th, visitors will be able to see a display featuring Justin Verlander and Tiger memorabilia while learning details of the six no-hitters in the 107-year history of the team – and Dan Dickerson’s radio call of the final out provides an exuberant soundtrack.

Special artifacts featured in the exhibit include the following:

A ball used in Tuesday night’s game;

A scorecard, program and ticket stub from Tuesday night’s game;

A 2006 World Series Justin Verlander uniform jersey;

A framed photo and pitching rubber signed by Verlander;

Photos of the other four pitchers who had thrown no-hitters as Tigers, including Jack Morris (April 7, 1984 in Chicago), Jim Bunning (July 20, 1958 in Boston) Virgil Trucks (May 15, 1952 at Briggs Stadium and August, 25, 1952 in New York) and the late George Mullin (July 4, 1912 vs. St. Louis);

A program and ticket stub from Morris’ 1984 no-hit gem from Comiskey Park.
