GUIDED TOUR EXPLANATION & RATIONALE:
This resource is designed to align with the Detroit 67: Perspectives exhibit at the Detroit Historical Museum. When booking the Detroit 67 Facilitated Tour Experience with the Detroit Historical Society’s group sales coordinator, let us know that you chose to use the Detroit 67 Facilitated Tour Educator Resource.

Through observation and discussion of the events that unfolded in July 1967 students will be prepared to discuss and support their opinions of social themes of the 60s to today. Students will begin to understand the common themes by which Detroit culture has evolved and adapted to the present time.

LEARNING TARGET:
Through a dialogue-based, facilitated experience groups will experience the Detroit 67: Perspectives exhibition, while discussing the events of the turbulent summer of 1967. This experience allows students to examine the footsteps Detroiter’s took in the past in hopes of inspiring and encouraging our future generations to shape a brighter future for the city of Detroit.

STUDENT OUTCOMES:
Students will:
• develop a deeper understanding of nomenclature used to identify the events of ’67 and discuss their thoughts and opinions on terminology today.
• reflect on the way they think about social and racial issues.
• become familiar with how Detroiter’s experience the events of ’67.
• be inspired to become more engaged in the metro Detroit community.

PRE-VISIT ACTIVITIES:
Introduce students to the 1960s and discuss the civil rights movement as its presented in your curriculum. To get students looking and thinking, have students complete July 1967 Though Photographs lesson found at www.detroithistorical.org/learn/teacher-portal/lesson-plans.

POST VISIT ACTIVITY:
Take the opportunity to debrief with students about the exhibit, their experience and their opinions about the events of ’67.
