Letter from the Executive Director
Bob Bury

To many, last winter with its cold temperatures and never-ending snowfalls seemed like the way winters used to be. Let’s hope that our summer follows suit and turns out to be as sunny, warm and relaxing as the summers many of us remember growing up.

The cover of this issue of Making History hearkens back to the summer of 1951 when the City of Detroit was at its height in population and growth. Downtown Detroit was bustling with business and was home to a vibrant retail district. Thousand of Detroiter’s headed to Woodward Avenue to shop at Hudson’s, Kern’s and Sam’s, as well as the many other specialty shops and restaurants that lined surrounding streets.

Today, this corner of Fort Street and Woodward looks very different — but downtown Detroit continues to attract big crowds for concerts, festivals and, of course, Tiger baseball.

Back in 1951, the City celebrated its 250th birthday in a big way with parties, parades and, as pictured — a very large birthday cake. This year, as we celebrate Detroit’s 308th birthday, the cake is smaller. But the celebration is longer as it will last throughout the entire month of July — and will include a gift for everyone — free admission, thanks to the generous support of PVS Chemicals!

Join us, with family and friends, any day in July — free of charge — and don’t forget our traditional birthday party celebration on Sunday, July 26th, complete with cake and special programming.

Summer is a great time to enjoy all metro Detroit has to offer. Be sure to make visiting the Detroit Historical Museum and the Dossin Great Lakes Museum a “must do” on your summer to-do list. Whether you visited a few weeks ago, not since the fourth grade, or perhaps never before, I know you’ll find it to be a great way to enjoy a summer afternoon.

As always, we appreciate your continued support and we look forward to celebrating Detroit’s 308th birthday — and summer — with you!

Sincerely,

Robert A. Bury
Executive Director & CEO
Detroit Historical Society

Metro Detroit’s official 308th birthday party features FREE admission

Join the Detroit Historical Society for a family celebration like no other — the City of Detroit’s 308th birthday party on Sunday, July 26, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Detroit Historical Museum!

The event will feature special guests who will share their knowledge and expertise on genealogy, explore Detroit’s early cultural roots, and demonstrate Native American dancing and artifacts.

What would a birthday party be without cake? There will be plenty for you to enjoy. You can also enter the Society’s Old Fashioned Cake Walk and try to win one of the many birthday cakes donated by metro Detroit cake makers.

Best of all — admission to the event is FREE! Make your plans now to attend.

PVS Chemicals sponsors free admission during month of July!

Thanks to the generous support of PVS Chemicals, admission to the Detroit Historical Museum for the entire month of July will be free! As a result, local families and individuals impacted by the downturn in the economy will have an opportunity to experience all that the Museum has to offer without having to worry about the cost of admission.

“For a family of four, that might mean a savings of at least $20, which in today’s environment, makes a difference in that family’s budget,” explained Detroit Historical Society CEO Bob Bury. “We can’t thank PVS Chemicals enough for its support.”

Help spread the word this summer. Tell all of your family and friends to come spend the day at the Museum this July — for free!

Exclusive Detroit Historical Society Members Preview

Members — watch your mail this summer for your exclusive invitation to a Members Preview Opening at the Detroit Historical Museum on the evening of Friday, September 25.

After a brief summer recess, the Museum will reopen with a number of exciting new exhibitions including VeloCity: Detroit’s Need for Speed and Fabulous 5: Detroit’s Snack Food Superstars. (See page 5 for details on exhibits.)

If you’re not a member and would like to attend, please call Ebani Lowery at (313) 833-1980 to join today!

Museum open through Labor Day weekend!

For the first time in several years, the Detroit Historical Museum will remain OPEN through Labor Day Weekend! With more families looking for fun things to do closer to home, this change offers everyone the chance to spend a fun afternoon at an affordable price.

The Museum will then close to the public for three weeks to install several new exhibitions in time for the Fall 2009 season. The recess begins on Labor Day — Monday, September 7 — and ends with the Museum’s public re-opening on Saturday, September 26.

This means that Sunday, September 6, will be your last chance to experience many popular exhibits, including Detroit’s Classic TV Personalities. Make your plans now!

Your Support Counts!

Every gift that the Society receives helps support our mission to preserve and present the region’s history. The Society greatly appreciates the ongoing financial support of all of our friends. You can support the Annual Fund through a tax-deductible gift.

Enclosed with this newsletter is a response envelope for your convenience to make a gift to the Society and show your support of its valuable programs and services. All gifts are completely tax-deductible.

If you’ve already made a gift this year, we want to thank you. Please consider making an additional gift to help us continue our important work of preserving our history through exciting exhibits and programs.

Junior League of Detroit makes life-saving gift

The Detroit Historical Society would like to thank the Junior League of Detroit, Inc. for its generous donation that has made possible the purchase of a Phillips HeartStart Onsite Defibrillator (AED).

This AED can be used on adults and children alike. This gift helps the Society ensure a safe environment for all of our visitors throughout the year.

Hero or Villain? Metro Detroit’s Legacy of Leadership

Now Open • Booth-Wilkinson Gallery

Come see one of our most talked about exhibits, Hero or Villain? Metro Detroit’s Legacy of Leadership!

At a time when the qualities and characteristics that define leadership are at the forefront both in our community and nationwide, this exhibit focuses on the lives of a wide range of community leaders who provoked passionate opinions throughout our history. Seen through the eyes of their neighbors, media and peers, these individuals made their mark in metro Detroit and this exhibit shows you both sides of their story so you can come to your own conclusions.

Detroit’s Classic TV Personalities

Open through September 6 • Kresge Gallery

While we may not see them on Nick-at-Nite or any of the other nostalgic TV channel lineups, the names and faces of those being featured in the Detroit Historical Society’s Detroit’s Classic TV Personalities are every bit as familiar to those who grew up here during a time when “rabbit ears” were a popular accessory at appliance stores.

Indeed, the seven individuals being featured — Bill Bonds, John Kelly, Bill Kennedy, Emery King, Amyre Makupson, Soupy Sales, and Marilyn Turner — are an important part of our community’s shared history. Each carved a unique niche in Detroit’s highly competitive television market. From rapid-fire reporting to zany after-school fun to insightful interviews, the stories they brought into our living rooms informed, humored, and often even disturbed us.

The exhibition features a variety of artifacts as well as footage from their original broadcasts. It gives “must see TV” a whole new meaning!

From Haven to Home: Jewish Life in America

Presented by the Jewish Historical Society of MI in cooperation with the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Detroit

Open through August 30 • Stark Hall

The touring exhibition From Haven to Home chronicles and brings to life the American Jewish experience, focusing on America as “Haven” — the Jewish immigrant’s refuge from persecution in countries abroad — to America as “Home,” the creation of permanent Jewish communities in the U.S. The exhibit features more than 200 reproductions of American Judaic treasures from the collections of the Library of Congress, augmented by a selection of important loans from other institutions.

Among its treasures are a letter from the Hebrew Congregation of Newport, R.I. to President George Washington, and his letter in response, as well as a copy of the hand-written version of Emma Lazarus’ poem “The New Colossus,” which is inscribed on the base of the Statue of Liberty. Michigan artifacts include memorabilia from the Faygo Company, historic war uniforms and ceremonial items dating back centuries.

Belle Isle: Soul of the City, Lighting the Way for Better Urban Living

Presented by: The Friends of Belle Isle

Opens July 18

The 19th century movement that, among other things, gave to the people of the City of Detroit its Belle Isle Park focused on better urban living through a healthier citizenry.

This exhibit demonstrates that when it comes to individual and family enrichment, conservation of natural resources, and local community development today, Belle Isle can once again be a catalyst for a brighter future in Detroit.

COMMUNITY GALLERY

In 2006, the Detroit Historical Society dedicated a 1,600 square-foot gallery in the Detroit Historical Museum’s Alger Hall for use by community non-profit organizations and institutions of higher learning that raise awareness and appreciation for metro Detroit’s communities and cultures. The Community Gallery has helped a number of groups tell their story.

Detroit’s Chinatown

Presented by: Chelsea Zuzindlak and the Friends of Detroit’s Chinatown • Open through July 5

This special exhibit tells the untold — and often overlooked — story of the people and events that aided in the development of the cultural community and immigrant area known as Detroit’s Chinatown.

In addition to capturing its past, the exhibition explores the efforts of local activist groups to renovate this unique cultural space, an area with immense potential for both preservation and growth.

Come and learn more about this fascinating chapter in our community’s history.

Belle Isle: Soul of the City, Lighting the Way for Better Urban Living

Presented by: The Friends of Belle Isle

Opens July 18

This exhibit demonstrates that when it comes to individual and family enrichment, conservation of natural resources, and local community development today, Belle Isle can once again be a catalyst for a brighter future in Detroit.
Metro Detroiters have always been ready to say “I’ll race you!” From early Native American foot races to French horse races — right up to the recent Red Bull Air Races — we’ve always found the thrill of a race irresistible. No matter the century, no matter the season, the challenge has been met!

VeloCity: Detroit’s Need for Speed

| Opens September 26 | Stark Hall |

“Very few cities can connect their history to so many different types of racing,” said Joel Stone, Curator. “This exhibit will provide visitors with an in-depth look at a wide variety of competitions, including those featuring dragsters and stock cars, hydroplanes, sailboats — even running and swimming.”

Exciting graphics, videos, stories, and interactive displays will allow visitors to explore the nature of various sports. Historical artifacts, modern machines and the nature of competitive racing advertising will enhance the exhibit’s appeal. It’s guaranteed to feed your appetite for speed!

The Cougar II

| Opens September 26 | Automotive Showplace |

Even hard-core auto buffs will be impressed by the upcoming feature in the Automotive Showplace — a Cougar II!

The fastback two-door red coupe is the only car of its kind and was built in 1963 as a prototype by Ford Motor Company.

Designed by Eugene Bordinat, it’s powered by a V8 engine and equipped with a 4-speed manual transmission and was designed to compete with the popular Chevrolet Corvette.

Could you imagine taking this car for a cruise down Woodward? Be sure to check it out beginning this fall.

Detroit’s “oral history” at its finest!

Fabulous 5: Detroit’s Snack Food Superstars

| Opens September 26 | Kresge Gallery |

Fabulous 5: Detroit’s Snack Food Superstars takes a tasteful look at the local companies that make some of Detroit’s most beloved treats. Each has become a household name, and their culinary concoctions have created delectable memories for many generations.

The superstars to be featured are: Better Made Snack Food Company, Germack Pistachio Company, Sanders Confectionery, Stroh’s Products and Vernor’s Ginger Ale.

Their products have been staples at backyard barbecues, family reunions, holiday parties and tailgate gatherings for decades, bringing to mind Boston Coolers, Bumpy Cake, Rainbow Chips, quality ice cream and the world’s best pistachios. Perhaps the supreme compliment is that Detroiters who have relocated have these foods shipped to them from here — sometimes to the ends of the earth.

Do yourself a favor when you visit this one — don’t come hungry!

Detroit Trivia

| Opens September 26 | Second Floor Corridor Gallery |

For those that think they know Detroit history — and those that don’t — this exhibit will be an enjoyable challenge.

With more than 300 years of fun facts to choose from, Detroit Trivia is a great opportunity for visitors to interact with our collective past at the Detroit Historical Museum.

Questions will be divided into four categories based on their degree of difficulty. Historic images and unique artifacts will accompany the questions, enhancing the exhibit for audiences of all ages.

For example, do you know the name of the mayor’s official residence? Or which state fair is older than Michigan’s? Or even who was the first woman elected to the Detroit City Council — and in what year?

While you’re here, be sure to stop by the Museum Store and purchase the “Play Detroit Trivia” card game. Not only does it feature answers to the questions above, but hundreds more as well!
Behind the Scenes Tours

The Fillmore Detroit

July 11 • 11 a.m.

Back by popular demand! Always received with rave reviews, this tour provides a unique glimpse into the inner workings of this fully functioning theater. Built in 1925 and best remembered as the State Theatre, The Fillmore Detroit is one of our city’s most memorable landmark buildings.

WXYZ-TV Channel 7

Tuesday Special!

July 14 • 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Visit the Broadcast House! WXYZ-TV Channel 7 hosted Soupy Sales before he was aired nationally. This special tour will take you behind the scenes of the Channel 7 noon news broadcast and give you a chance to dine in the station’s cafeteria.

Belle Isle by Bus

July 18 • 11 a.m.

$30 members/
$40 non-members

If you’ve ever wanted to learn about the island’s colorful development, this is your chance. Come see the statues and buildings that have made it a summer destination for metro Detroiters for centuries and hear about how it came to have such a magnificent fountain. This comprehensive tour will give you a new appreciation for one of the region’s historic gems.

Detroit Media Partnership Sterling Heights Facility

July 25 • 11 a.m.

You’ve seen the newsroom… now see where the newspaper is printed and how it’s distributed! This massive facility helps bring the headlines from the reporter to your doorstep.

Pine Grove Historical Center

August 1 • 11 a.m.

Visit the magnificent Pontiac home of former Governor of Michigan Moses Wisner (Governor of Michigan from 1859–61), and several outbuildings dating to the 1840s. Select rooms are original and most areas have been restored to their pre-Civil War elegance.

Foran’s Irish Pub

August 8 • 11 a.m.

Lunch included!

Yet another “back by popular demand!” This tour takes you into what is now Foran’s, but has been a jewelry store, railroad ticket office, and — according to legend — even home to Harry Houdini’s magic shop. Enjoy lunch in the newly renovated pub at the conclusion of the tour.

Mexicantown

August 15 • 11 a.m.

Lunch included!

Take a stroll through one of Detroit’s most vibrant neighborhoods and explore its many stores — as well as the new Mercado.

You don’t want to miss the inside scoop on the new (and traditional) things to enjoy!

Elmwood Cemetery

August 22 • 11 a.m.

Popular guide Chancey Miller will guide us through the cemetery and into the city’s past, rich with stories and family connections that will leave you astounded.

Hamtramck

August 29 • 11 a.m.

$25 members/$35 non-members

Lunch included!

Bring your walking shoes for this one! Established as a township in 1798, Hamtramck has seen many changes over its centuries of history. Celebrities such as Mitch Ryder, Gail Kobe, and John Hodiak have called Hamtramck home. Come celebrate the city’s history and enjoy an authentic Polish lunch with writer and historian Greg Kowalski.

Corktown Walking Tour

September 26 • 11 a.m.

Lunch included!

Corktown is the oldest surviving neighborhood in Detroit. Irish immigrants with enough money to take them beyond the crowded boroughs of New York City and Boston established “Corktown” in the 1830s. Since then, the Corktown Historic District has been home to the people who built and worked in Detroit’s industries during the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Don’t miss one of our most popular tours!

King Brewing Company

September 12 • 11 a.m.

Lunch included!

This is your chance to get a firsthand look behind the scenes at a brewing company that has operated on a simple premise: to deliver an unparalleled product with integrity and vision. Located in the heart of industrial Pontiac, King Brewing Company is a true diamond in the rough. King customers call it the “best kept secret in Oakland County.”

Wayne State University

September 19 • 11 a.m.

Beginning with the Detroit Medical College in 1868, Wayne State has continued to expand its offerings — and impact — on the city and the region. The main campus now encompasses 203 acres, linking 100 education and research buildings in the heart of Detroit. The University also hosts public radio station WDET. Join us as we explore the campus with professor and author Charles K. Hyde.

Society can help you with your research

Need a little “history help” with your research? Know someone working on a college thesis, a book or even a documentary? Enjoy reviewing historical information from a certain period?

If you answered yes to any of these, then you should know that the Detroit Historical Society offers opportunities for college students, researchers for scholarly publications, and nonprofit agencies to research metropolitan Detroit and maritime-related materials — or have materials researched on their behalf at our Collections Resource Center or Archives at the Dossin Great Lakes Museum.

The Society’s archives, artifacts, images — and even personal assistance — are available. Visit our web site at www.detroithistorical.org for more information or contact the Curator of Collections at (313) 297-8391 to find out about scheduling an appointment.

Committed to the Deep: Exploring Underwater Treasures

Now Open
Great Lakes Gallery

Shipwrecks have always been a part of Great Lakes history. LaSalle’s Griffin, the first large vessel on the Lakes, sank on her maiden voyage. Since then thousands of ships and tens of thousands of sailors and passengers have met their fate on the freshwater seas.

Their legacy has become an underwater treasure trove for historians, archaeologists and divers. Committed to the Deep explores both the artifacts and the mysteries found beneath the waves.

Recent changes in the environment of the Great Lakes, enhanced by new and powerful technologies have increased the exploration capabilities for a growing number of researchers. New shipwrecks are being discovered nearly every week, and vast databases make it easier to identify them. A sense of stewardship has emerged, nurtured by the scientific and scholastic community, promoting the preservation and understanding of these significant resources.

While this is a serious subject, the exhibit is designed to be fun, informative and intriguing. A look at diving compares the “old school” hard hat suits with the high tech and agile equipment available today. Relics from the Alvin Clark are displayed, explaining a disaster that resulted in the development of federal and state maritime preserves and protection laws. An educational element addresses the process of analyzing and documenting a shipwreck, as well as aspects of conservation and preservation.

Join us in the quiet, underwater world where history is discovered by people who are Committed to the Deep!

L is for Lighthouse

Now Open
DeRoy Hall

To both sailors and landsmen, there are few sights so reassuring or romantic as a lighthouse. For centuries, these sentinels have warned navigators of dangerous shoals, guided valuable commerce to waiting markets, and welcomed mariners and passengers to safe harbor. Their importance made them laboratories for new technologies and engineering techniques. Additionally, the bravery and dedication of lighthouse keepers is the grist of legend and lore.

With almost 10,000 miles of shoreline, the Great Lakes are home to a concentration of navigational lights of all types. Some sit majestically on high bluffs. Others stand bravely on artificial islands miles from land. In days gone by, they perched on ships that stood stationary where permanent structures were not possible.

With the advent of global positioning systems (GPS), most are no longer vital to lake commerce and are being decommissioned. In many cases, local historians and preservationists are assuming control of these monuments, restoring them and making them available to lighthouse fans from around the world.

This exhibit pays tribute to these wonderful maritime landmarks!

Bob-Lo:
Entertainment Island

Now Open

From 1898 to 1993, metro Detroiters made millions of memories at Bob-Lo, an island amusement park on the Canadian side of the Detroit River. Every summer for 95 years, the steamships Columbia and Ste. Claire carried the young and young-at-heart for a day of romance and thrills at Bob-Lo. View the artifacts and stories in this exhibition that bring back the magic of summers past.
